PRESENT CONTRACT CAUSES UNREST

Gray Book and Agreement Found to Conflict

A new Faculty-Student Agreement seems to be imminent. A nominating committee, formed of two members of the Academic Council, Senate, and House of Representatives respectively, is already selecting candidates for the grave responsibility of formulating the proposed agreement.

For twenty years, with some revision in 1918, the contract between faculty and students which is the basis of the present Wellesley College Government Association has been faithfully carried out. Organization of college machinery under this system has been comparatively smooth, and few and faint have been the protests against it. For some time, however, there has been misunderstanding of the students' rights and privileges, due to an unfounded rumor that Wellesley had a "student government". A phrase in the front of the Gray Book, moreover, tells students that they must uphold its laws because it is their privilege to make and change them at any time.

House Exceeds Rights

For these reasons, the House of Representatives, believing itself empowered above its rights, declared illegal two Gray Book rules and sent a letter to the President of the college requesting an explanation for a third. All these regulations were inserted in the Gray Book without the knowledge of the students, but as shown by the Jurisdiction Committee appointed by the Senate to consider them, they were entirely in accord with the provisions of the Faculty-Student Agreement. Had those provisions been well known, no such declaration would have been attempted. The discovery made, however, resulted in agitation to change the entire basis of the agreement.

As Wellesley College may be under its provisions for some time, the text of the contract is here given for the

BOSTON STUDENTS TO MEET IN FANEUIL HALL JAN. 18

A meeting under the auspices of the National Student Committee on Disarmament will be held at Faneuil Hall, Wednesday, January 18, at 8 P. M. Students from Boston and adjacent territory will discuss the economic problems confronting both the Washington conference and the new economic conference to be held at Genoa, Italy. The meeting will be free of charge and open to everyone. Tickets may be obtained from Dorothy Merz, 106 Pomeroy, and further information will be announced.

COLLEGE REJECTS C. G. RESIGNATIONS

House Meetings Suggest Changes in Gray Book

Breach of contract on the part of the student body in regard to the Faculty-Student Agreement was the accusation made by the officers of the College Government Association and student members of the Senate, in presenting their resignation at an all-college mass-meeting held December 8. Their action in resigning brought to a head the unrest which has been gathering volume all through the fall term, and which is now expressing itself in widespread agitation for a new Faculty-Student Agreement. Until this should be achieved, and a new system of government established, the resignations of these officers were rejected, after some discussion at a second mass-meeting, January 5.

Text of the Resignation

The text of the resignation as read by Emmavil Luce, president of the College Government Association, which defines the position of the officers, is as follows:

"Inasmuch as we have reached in the development of the Wellesley College Government Association one of the most critical moments in its history, this meeting has been called to consider a crisis which demands of the members of this Association immediate and intelligent attention.

"In 1901 when the students of Wellesley College were entrusted with certain rights and privileges as stated in the Faculty-Student Agreement, fully discussed and revised in 1918, with those rights and privileges they accepted inevitable responsibilities, both individual and collective. That contract holds today. Apparently, however, the student body does not feel the binding force of this agreement, for it does not seem to recognize its responsibilities, inasmuch as there is a general lack of constructive criticism as well as inadequate cooperation with the officers of the Senate. That this is so, is evidenced by the attitude of the student body in regard to two recent cases of discipline upon which it has passed judgment without a considered estimate of the cases, —an estimate involving the opinions not only of those who were disciplined but also of the disciplinary bodies.

"It would seem that there are two possible explanations of this situation. First, either the student body is no longer willing to recognize the responsibility which comes with privilege, and therefore would, of necessity, wish to relinquish its powers according to the provision in Article VI of the Faculty-Student Agreement whereby within thirty days' notice the Wellesley College Government Association may formally relinquish to the authorities of the college all or any part of the powers granted in said agreement. Or second, the student body is no longer able to give the support which it pledged in the election of its officers of the Senate.

"If the first is true, the student members of the Senate feel that they can hardly be expected to continue in office should the student body desire to keep its powers without a quickened sense of its responsibility. If, on the other hand, it is true that the present officers have lost the confidence once given by their fellow-students it inevitably follows that it is not for the best good of the College Government Association for them to remain in office longer. Therefore, we the undersigned, place in the hands of our electors our resignations, to take effect at such time as our successors are elected."

Comments on College Government Crisis

In my opinion the greater part of our college government difficulties this fall have been due to the fact that we discovered how very few matters we really have under our control. I believe that to foster a successful honor system there must be some very definite responsibility to which to appeal.

MARION PARKER PERRIN, 1922.

In considering the point of publicity for special cases, it seems to me that making known the facts would not only create an informed public opinion, but would also be a reasonable punishment for the offender.

JANET WARFIELD, 1923.

I think that the unnecessary rules which clutter the gray book should be removed, and that all future legislation should be initiated in the House, so that there may be a more real cooperation between faculty and students.

JANE HARVEY, 1923.

In a new Faculty-Student agreement complex system and a redundancy of offices should be avoided, for the more offices there are to be filled the less thought will be spent in choosing the candidates. In regard to publicity, it seems to me that this is always the wisest policy, for a gap of secrecy will always be filled by misinformation.

CARROLL McCARTY, 1924.

In any system of college government the first requisite for success is a thorough knowledge on the part of each individual of the regulations and the mechanism of the government. The students are not qualified to have the last word in government, but certainly the power of faculty and students should be more clearly defined.

MARION MONTGOMERY, 1925.

WILSON FOUNDATION FUND LAUNCHED

House Chairmen Receive Subscriptions

Next week during the campaign of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, opportunities for subscription to the fund will be provided in each group of college houses on campus and in the village, and at different times during the day at the El Table or in Founders' Hall. It is felt that those who appreciate the aims of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation will seek the collectors, rather than wait to be sought, and so these collectors will not be in every house. In the village the Foundation will be represented by girls in each dining district. Further announcements will appear on the class boards.

JUNIOR PROM. COMES FEBRUARY 11 Plans Still Incomplete

Plans for the Junior Prom are nearing completion. Because exams this year are to be given throughout this second week, Saturday, February 11, is the only date left open. The Prom will be held in Mary Hemenway Hall from seven to twelve, with music by Bert Lowe's orchestra. Supper will be served during the evening. Special arrangements have been made for cars to carry the men back to town.

In spite of the disadvantages of a Saturday night Prom, the week-end will be filled. Various possibilities for Friday evening parties are being discussed.

The committee is as follows: Alexandra Leith, chairman; Elizabeth Bryan, Polly Hackney, Katherine Kingsbury, Esther Merrick, Dorothy Springer.

WELLESLEY TO DEBATE RADCLIFFE AND HOLYOKE

The secretary of the Intercollegiate Debating League has announced that Wellesley's opponents in debate this year are Radcliffe and Mt. Holyoke. The subject has not yet been announced to the teams, but the material committee is already at work looking up references in order that work on the subject may be started immediately after midyears.

ACADEMIC COUNCIL PAYS TRIBUTE TO MISS THOMPSON

Miss Caroline Burling Thompson, Professor in the Department of Zoölogy, died on December 5, 1921. The minute adopted by the Academic Council on Miss Thompson's death follows:

"In the death of our colleague, Caroline Burling Thompson, we the members of the Academic Council desire to record our sense of loss. During her twenty years' connection with the college she endeared herself to a wide circle of friends by her warm personal devotion, by the breadth of her intellectual interests, and by her love of beauty both in nature and in art.

"Her students found in her an inspiring teacher, a wise and sympathetic counselor, and a generous guide to those who sought to enter the higher fields of scientific attainment.

"Hers was the temper of a scholar whom nothing daunted. In the midst of her generous response to college, family, and community activities, she pursued with single-minded tenacity researches in her chosen field, in which she won distinction and gained wide recognition from scientists in this country and abroad.

"The College has been the richer for her presence, for her loyalty to its highest interests and ideals and for her productive scholarship.

"To the members of her family and to her friends, we the members of the Academic Council extend our heartfelt sympathy."

READINGS TO BEGIN JANUARY 13

Cosmopolitan Program Offered

Contrast is offered in the program arranged by the Department of Reading and Speaking for the course of readings this winter. A variety of interest is contained in the negro mammy tales of Miss Lucine Finch, and the presentation of the romantic life of Old Japan by Mr. and Mrs. Michitaro Ongawa, the first and last speakers in the course.

The reading by Miss Finch will come on January 13. She has arranged the unpublished religious songs of the Old South, told her by her negro mammy who claimed to have been an African princess, and tells them with all the charm of their composer.

On February 17, Mr. Jerome Rogers Howard will read a play by Chekhov, and other readings to be announced later. Mr. Howard, whose program last year brought about a request for his return, comes to Wellesley well recommended by critics both in this country and in England.

The last of the three readings will be the presentation by Mr. and Mrs. Michitaro Ongawa of several Japanese plays on the evening of March 3. This Japanese artist and his American wife have appeared all over this country and have been very enthusiastically received. Mr. and Mrs. Ongawa will bring with them beautiful scenery and costumes that should add to the charm of the performance, which will be given at the Barn.

OUTING CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED THIS WEEK

Club to Manage Carnival January 14

The proposed Wellesley Outing Club is already attracting attention from outside. Philadelphia has challenged it to a game of ice-hockey and Smith has written for full particulars as to its organization with an idea of forming a similar club. Since A. A. finds its duties too manifold for the management of the Carnival and the organization of hitherto unorganized sports the Outing Club is to take over these activities. All participants in the Carnival, January 14, must be members.

Will, Not Skill, Required

Membership is open to all members of A. A. who are interested in such sports as skating, skiing, snowshoeing, hiking, and swimming. The Outing Club will appoint heads for all of these but no activity engaged in through membership in this club will count toward points for a "W." Ability in any particular sport is no longer being considered as a requirement for membership. Interest is the one essential.

About two hundred prospective members are now enrolled and Elizabeth Parsons, '22, is Chairman pro tem.

Privileges of Members

It is hoped that the Outing Club will be able to furnish instruction in skating and swimming for its members on certain afternoons and that it can provide skis and toboggans for their use. There will be some hikes in the spring.

To Be Organized January 12

A meeting of all the members of A.A. is now called for Thursday, January 12, at the Barn, which will pass the amendment to the Constitution permitting the organization of the Outing Club. After the conclusion of A.A. business, a meeting of the Outing Club will be held, and there will be an election of a chairman, a secretary, and a treasurer.

MISS BATES DESCRIBES WILSON FOUNDATION

Campaign Begins January 16

Miss Katherine Lee Bates, who is in charge of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation in Wellesley, has given the following statement of the aim and origin of the organization:

This Foundation, in which we all have opportunity to become sharers, is to be, according to the official statement, "created by public subscription in recognition of the national and international services of Woodrow Wilson, twice President of the United States, who furthered the cause of human freedom and was instrumental in pointing out effective methods for the coöperation of the liberal forces of mankind throughout the world. The Award or Awards from the income of the Foundation will be made from time to time by a nationally constituted committee to the individual or group that has rendered, within a specified period, meritorious service to democracy, public welfare, liberal thought, or peace through justice."

To provide the money for these Awards, there is now a nation-wide organization, state by state, for a campaign to raise one million dollars, which will be entrusted to a body of representative and non-partisan Americans for permanent investment in United States securities. In every state, cities and towns and colleges have their individual committees whose duty it is, not to press and solicit, for the dignity and idealism of the cause admit only of eager givers, but to make widely known the opportunity to become, as certificates granted to subscribers of sums of a dollar or more will attest, original founders of this American gift to human brotherhood.

In relation to Mr. Wilson, it should be clearly understood that no portion of the fund will go to him. The Foundation bears his name in honor of his high purposes and his great services, in recognition of his sacrifices and his suffering. A scholar, a statesman, a Christian, he has fought a winning fight, as our newspapers day by day make evident, to put national association for universal peace and welfare into practical politics. He has been misunderstood, belied, and abused, like all pioneers of liberal and humane movements in history. The supporters of this Foundation are not content to leave his vindication and the testimony of a world's gratitude to the future, but would put his own generation on record as loyal to the nobility of his will and work.

As regards politics, it should be clearly understood, again, that the Foundation transcends party. The names of prominent Republicans as well as of Democrats appear on its numerous committees. The idea of the Foundation sprang into being at a meeting of New York women on Christmas Eve, 1920. The Awards will be absolutely non-partisan. It would be no surprise if the first Award should go to Mr. Hughes.

JUNE PLAY TO USE NEW TRYOUT SYSTEM

Individual Tryouts Will Be Arranged

This year the tryouts for the Commencement play are to be conducted under an individual appointment method. The Barnswallows' Tryout Committee will give five-minute individual tryouts to all those desiring to take part in the Greek play "Medea" by Euripides, to be given this June. On a special Barnswallows' reserve shelf in the Library, and under reserve book regulations there are now twenty-five copies of "Medea," and everyone interested in the production is asked to make use of this opportunity to familiarize herself with the play before trying out. In the Barn office, 55 Ad. Building, there will be a schedule of appointments which may be signed for. The hours will be on the following afternoons (from 4 to 5:30: Thursday, January 19; Friday, January 20; Monday, January 23, and Tuesday, January 24. Every girl in college who feels that she has dramatic ability, regardless of any training whatsoever, or any girl who would like the experience of taking part in a Greek play is urged to try out. She may be just the person the Committee is looking for. It should also be understood that the records kept from these tryouts will be used in selecting the casts of any one-act play presented at an Informal Event in the second semester.

The chorus for "Medea" consists of fifteen girls who must have good singing voices. Professor Macdougall of the Music Department, has kindly offered to give tryouts for voices on January 21 from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M., in Billings Hall, and will send the Tryout Committee a list of girls from which the chorus is to be selected.

I. C. S. A. PLAYS SANTA CLAUS

The Wellesley chapter of I. C. S. A. played Santa Claus several times last year with the help of the students. Boxes were sent to Aunt Dinah; a load of warm clothes went to New York to be shipped from there to children in Siberia; about four hundred dolls, dressed despite the hurry of packing, were distributed in hospitals and children's institutions in Boston. Some dolls that did not get dressed in time will be sent to be given out during the year.

A doll show was held in the Ad. building on December 12. There were dolls with Bramley dresses, Peter Pan collars; lady dolls with evening dress and fur; little girl dolls with smocked dresses, pockets with handkerchiefs and a penny; and little boy dolls with Buster Brown suits all complete. The dolls had a tea-party, too, even though it was a rainy day.

COLLEGE NOTES

Among the Christmas prints published by the Atlantic Monthly Press is a pamphlet, Merry Christmas from Boston, by Miss Frances Lester Warner of the Atlantic staff. Miss Warner was formerly a member of the English Department at Wellesley.

Miss Elizabeth F. Fisher, Professor of Geology and Geography, is absent on a five weeks' visit to France, where she is studying geological conditions.

During the Christmas vacation the I. C. S. A. workers in Boston held two conferences, one at Peabody House on December 22, and one at Denison House on December 29.

The All-College Carnival which was to be held in Boston from February 7 to February 12, has been postponed until next winter.

"SAY NOT THE STRUGGLE NAUGHT AVALLETH"

Whatever the College Government Association mass meetings may or may not have accomplished in the matter of direct governmental changes, they have brought about a change in the attitude on the part of the undergraduates which will be far reaching in its effects. The criticism which the College Government officers have made of the student body, namely, that it does not offer intelligent and constructive criticism, has been to a certain extent justified in the past. But it has not been entirely the fault of the student body that it has been unintelligent in regard to its government.

It has been given few opportunities to inform itself. The Constitution and By-Laws of the College Government Association and the Gray Book are the two records from which undergraduates may draw their information, and these documents do not tell the whole story by any manner of means. They do not, for instance, define the policy of the Senate, nor do they state clearly and definitely the powers of the House of Representatives, nor explain how rules may appear in the Gray Book without having been brought up in the House.

The few undergraduates who are particularly concerned with matters of government have taken pains to investigate and inform themselves; the majority have naturally remained in ignorance, since information was not ready to their hands. It has been the function of the mass meetings to dispel some of the ignorance in regard to the nature of the present governmental system, and to arouse a more general interest in the College Government Association than has been exhibited in the past. The task now before the college is the difficult one of keeping alive this interest and pushing through the changes in the constitution and policy suggested in the mass meetings. For the accomplishment of this purpose, there is one machine, the House of Representatives.

The student body has made quite definite statements concerning the changes which it desires to see effect; the members of the House have no cause to feel that they are ignorant of the views of their constituents. Their clear duty now is to follow out, so far as possible, the suggestions made in the mass meetings, and to gain through legislative channels the changes desired by the student body. The House needs the backing of the entire college in this work; the college needs representation in the House. It is a mistake to feel that the College Government crisis is past and that undergraduates have a right to dismiss the matter from their minds. The struggle has only begun, but in the future it will be carried on in the House instead of in mass meetings. The college will speak through representatives, and it is to be hoped that the representatives will feel the responsibility of their positions.

SPEAK UP!

Prominent among those who contribute nothing to Free Press discussions about their honor system are ninety-nine Wellesley students out of a hundred. This significant proportion of silent partners may be accounted for in two ways: either those involved are not interested enough to hold definite opinions, or else they feel that even though interested enough they have not the right to express such opinions as they hold, through having violated the present honor system. Either category of people is significant; indifference or sense of shame, either one, means an unhealthy attitude toward the code. One may say more scathing things about the latter class—but they at least might say something valuable toward the reconstruction of the system, if they would. The fact that the latter class of the two mentioned must be a large one shows that the honor system we have at present is trying to put weight on things which have no intrinsic value, and in so doing is causing people to fall by the wayside over trivial stumbling blocks like the chaperone rules.

PRESENT PROBLEMS NOT NEW

During the fall term a series of events, culminating in the presentation of their resignations by the student members of the Senate, has brought into the foreground the problems of our governing association. Some members of the college have been of the opinion that a growing lack of a sense of responsibility and a deplorable ignorance of the constitution and its mode of functioning have been shown by the students. There is no doubt that the present situation has thrown into relief the fact that such conditions do exist; but that they exist to an alarmingly greater extent than before does not necessarily follow.

There are in college, I believe, a few girls who will acknowledge no obligation to the community; there are those who are indifferent to such an obligation; and there are those who conscientiously fulfill the duties of citizenship. That the relative proportion in each of these classes has greatly changed is a statement which needs investigation. With the general restlessness and breaking away from convention and tradition which is so apparent at this time throughout the world, it is only natural that some disturbance should reach our college life. Those girls who are classed as indifferent, as a consequence of the larger freedom and greater laxity which prevail to-day, find certain rules more irksome than before. Since their sense of responsibility is a thing which they admit when they give the matter serious consideration, but which is not strong enough to control their actions, they are led into committing noticeable offences which are brought to the attention of the college. Thus our problem is not to find a way of dealing with a new group in college; but it is the same old task of cultivating in those who are indifferent a sense of responsibility strong enough to stand the test. It is rather disheartening to come to the conclusion that we have no challenging new problem to face; but it is most encouraging to feel that we are alive to the task we have so long ignored.

Likewise we have discovered our ignorance. I do not believe that it is any new thing! When all went smoothly, it was there; but we had to be roused to doing something before it was evident. And since it is evident we see the necessity for a campaign of education.

With an awakened sense of responsibility on the part of those who have been indifferent, and with an earnest effort on the part of the students to gain a thorough knowledge of our government, we can go forward hopefully to the task of revising the Faculty Student Agreement and putting through the needed reforms. The spirit we must have for this task is one of good-will which will lead to the closest coöperation which will be entirely free from personalities, and

Breakfast, or The Milky Way—A Rejected Editorial

One of the vital factors in undergraduate life here at Wellesley is the daily greeting in the dining-room of "Coffee, cocoa, milk"! Vital, not only because the choice made, as an integral part of our morning repast, is a big underlying influence in our day, but also because the phrase itself is rhythmical and pleasing, the refrain rings in our ears for twenty-four hours. What an influence it may unconsciously become in the course of a chaotic college career!

Let us examine it. From a poetic point of view, it is unsurpassable. The carefully worked out rhythm is trimeter with a rest at the end, while alliteration is consistently maintained throughout. What could be more euphonious? From an artistic standpoint, too, the refrain deserves mention. The rich black coloring of the coffee melting into the neutral tan of the cocoa finally becomes the pure white of fresh milk. What a vivid mental picture with which to start the day! The phrase is noteworthy, too, from a scientific aspect, physically rising from extreme heat to bitter cold and chemically descending from a strong to a weak product.

Endorsed by art and science alone, then, the refrain might be considered well worth its daily repetition. But there are still higher aspects to be considered. Psychologically, the phrase, bringing to the ears its beautiful and orderly message in the early morning, impresses on the mind a beauty and order likely to be imitated throughout the day. Thus we find that theoretical examination of the age-old refrain only raises in our estimation that for whose practical utility we already possess an unstinted admiration.

What Is a Vacuum Furnace?

IN an ordinary furnace materials burn or combine with the oxygen of the air. Melt zinc, cadmium, or lead in an ordinary furnace and a scum of "dross" appears, an impurity formed by the oxygen. You see it in the lead pots that plumbers use.

In a vacuum furnace, on the contrary, the air is pumped out so that the heated object cannot combine with oxygen. Therefore in the vacuum furnace impurities are not formed.

Clearly, the chemical processes that take place in the two types are different, and the difference is important. Copper, for instance, if impure, loses in electrical conductivity. Vacuum-furnace copper is pure.

So the vacuum furnace has opened up a whole new world of chemical investigation. The Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company have been exploring this new world solely to find out the possibilities under a new series of conditions.

Yet there have followed practical results highly important to industry. The absence of oxidation, for instance, has enabled chemists to combine metals to form new alloys heretofore impossible. Indeed, the vacuum furnace has stimulated the study of metallurgical processes and has become indispensable to chemists responsible for production of metals in quantities.

And this is the result of scientific research.

Discover new facts, add to the sum total of human knowledge, and sooner or later, in many unexpected ways, practical results will follow.

COLLEGE REJECTS C. G. RESIGNATIONS

Changes in Gray Book

When this document had been read, the officers withdrew and Mildred Miles, Speaker of the House of Representatives, took the chair. It was voted that a communication be sent to the officers appreciating their past services and stating that action on their resignations was suspended only until the question of the new form of government should be decided. There should also be sent an explanation of the petitions referred to in the text of the resignation with a regret that misunderstanding as to their nature occurred. The meeting was then thrown open for discussion of possible changes in the existing agreement. In order to ascertain just what changes were generally desired it was moved that members of the House of Representatives conduct meetings in their dormitries Friday night, December 9, in which written votes should be taken for or against each Gray Book rule. To promote intelligent understanding of the situation before these meetings, stump speakers were to be appointed to discuss various phases of the question between classes on Friday. As a further measure it was voted that previous to the house meetings the house presidents should meet with Emmavall Luce, president of the College Government Association, and the village seniors with Margaret Byard, vice-president of the College Government Association, to have explained any matters on which questions might arise.

Stump Speeches

That the present crisis in College Government is an opportunity for every student to give voice to her criticisms and suggestions was the main point made by each of the speakers on Friday between classes, on the steps in front of Founders' Hall. They urged the members of the College to avoid hysteria and to inform themselves as much as possible of the facts. The object of the speeches was to turn the enthusiasm and excitement aroused by the mass-meeting of the previous day into constructive channels.

Action on Resignations

When the house meetings were held on Friday night, before the discussion of the Gray Book rules, a document was presented to the students for signature, stating, in the first place, that they would support the present Faculty-Student Agreement as long as it stands; and secondly, according to the officers of College Government a vote of confidence and support. The results from the various houses on these two points showed the majority willing to uphold the Agreement until a new one is achieved; but on the other point a large number refused to pledge support to the officers. For this reason it was decided to take immediate action on the resignations at the second mass-meeting, instead of considering the evidence furnished on Gray Book rules, which has not all been received.

Some discussion on the resignations took place before they were voted on. In spite of the minority opposition to retaining the officers, the sense of the meeting seemed to be that as immediate acceptance or rejection was demanded, it would not be possible for the college to do without a governing body of any sort during the interval that must elapse before a new system can be instituted. The result of the discussion was that the resignations were rejected by a large majority.

Future Organization of Government

Discussion was begun on the organization of government under the new plan. A recommendation to the House was voted, to the effect that in the future the Senate's functions be strictly executive and legislative, and that a separate body be appointed of faculty and students to handle the judicial end. The question of whether the proceedings of the judicial body should be made public in future was also considered, but was rejected in the vote. It was the sense of the meeting that Senate meetings should be open to the College at large.
